

Public Voice business model

The Public Voice Foundation is an Institution managed and operated similar to government itself, with one major difference. No one represents the member and there are no 'facilitators.' The membership, not a supreme court (or Board of Governors or Board of Directors) is the ultimate power of the Institution.

Without modern technology such democratic concepts have failed before and would fail again. The need for changes in the USA government is a testimonial of this failure.

Public-Voice is one of the technologies which facilitate direct democracy from local small groups to Countywide, State or National levels. For those who cannot afford computers, volunteer located in public libraries or bookstores will provide them with the needed portal.

Local organizations – Builds membership, organize events, and provides for townhome meetings.

County Group – Supports the local organizations and decides on County wellbeing issues. Each group may petition changes to his local government (Commissioners, mayor, school board, etc.) or decide on other local beneficiary activity.

State Forum – Each State operates its own subsidiary of Public Voice and decides on the State's wellbeing including preparation of Initiatives or Petitions. Each State Forums elect one member to the Board of Governors.

National Forum –Organizes National events and prepares Petitions or Amendments for inclusion in Federal Ballots or petitions directed to the House or Senate for inclusion, or cancelation of a proposed referendum. May also petition the President of the USA for a specific executive order.

Board of Governors – The Foundation's regulatory agency insuring its continuity and integrity of our fundamental Mission.

The Board of Directors, elected by the Board of Governors, manages the operations of the Public Voice Foundation maintaining the functionality and continuity of the website and headquarters facilities. It provides the technical and legal staff required to provide the necessary services to the Forums and membership promotion.
